A deadly explosion at a Las Vegas chemical plant forces an afflicted cast of characters to reevaluate their lives

The Brightest Place in the World
A Novel

DAVID PHILIP MULLINS

“Every few years a writer comes along to tell us a new story about a place we thought we knew. David Philip Mullins is that writer. Las Vegas is his world. Gone are the glitter and the glamour; revealed are the jarring effects of an industrial disaster in a massive, ever-changing city. Carefully written in beautiful prose, The Brightest Place in the World is a moving and stunning novel from a natural writer.”
—Chris Offutt, author of My Father, the Pornographer and Country Dark

Inspired by true events, The Brightest Place in the World traces the lives of four characters haunted by an industrial disaster. On an ordinary sunny morning in 2012, a series of explosions level a chemical plant on the outskirts of Las Vegas. The shock waves are felt as far away as Fremont Street. Homes and businesses suffer broken windows and caved-in roofs. Hundreds are injured, and eight employees of the plant are unaccounted for, presumed dead.

One of the missing is maintenance technician Andrew Huntley, a husband and father who is an orbital force as those who loved him grapple with his loss. Andrew’s best friend Russell Martin—an anxiety-plagued bartender who calms his nerves with a steady inflow of weed—misses him more than he might a brother. Meanwhile Russell’s wife Emma—a blackjack dealer at a downtown casino—tries to keep her years-long affair with Andrew hidden. Simon Addison, a manager at the plant who could have saved Andrew’s life, is tortured by daily remorse, combined with a debilitating knowledge of his own cowardice. And then there’s Maddie, Andrew’s only child, a model high school student whose response to the tragedy is to experiment with shoplifting and other deviant behavior.

Against the sordid backdrop of Las Vegas—and inspired by the PEPCON disaster of May 4, 1988—this engaging novel is a story of grief and regret, disloyalty and atonement, infatuation and love.

David Philip Mullins is associate professor of English at Creighton University and a graduate of the Iowa Writers’ Workshop. His fiction has appeared in many publications, including The Yale Review, Ecotone, Cimarron Review, Fiction, and Folio.
“WE’D GET EXCITED AS HELL. NOTHING LIKE IT. WE GET ALL PUMPED UP. WE GOT ‘EM CORNERED AND WE’RE SCARED, BUT MAINLY EXCITED. IT’S HARD TO EXPLAIN. YOU’RE SO DAMN TIRED, BUT READY TO GO. HYPER. EVERYTHING’S GOING SO FAST AND SLOW AT THE SAME TIME.”

“ACCELERATION SECONDS,” SHERYL SAYS. “THAT’S WHAT MY GRANDPA CALLED IT. YOU GET SO EXCITED AND CRAZY THAT TIME SPEEDS UP INSTEAD OF SLOWING DOWN. BUT YOU STAY IN CONTROL SOMEHOW.”

“HELL, I’M TALKING ABOUT ACCELERATION HOURS,” NOWAK SAYS IN BETWEEN DRINKS. “YOU THINK PEOPLE DIE QUICK IN THE CAVES? HELL, NO. YOU GOT TO KEEP YOUR WITS. IT TAKES TIME TO DIE. YOU GOT TO SPEED THINGS UP TO GET THROUGH THE DAY.”

An engaging love story set against the historic backdrop of the attempt to use camels to build a road in the Southwest—the origin of Route 66

The Desert Between Us
A Novel

PHYLLIS BARBER

“Barber’s exquisite prose captures the beauty and the grandeur of the arid red rock country as well as Sophia’s longing for human connection and her struggle with duty and desire. Geoffrey Scott reminds her of how love can change a person and her world, and the camel takes it all in, placidly watching—as immovable as the desert.”
—Michele Morris, author of The Cowboy Life

The Desert Between Us is a sweeping, multi-layered novel based on the U.S. government’s decision to open more routes to California during the Gold Rush. To help navigate this waterless, largely unexplored territory, the War Department imported seventy-five camels from the Middle East to help traverse the brutal terrain that was murderous on other livestock.

Geoffrey Scott, one of the roadbuilders, decides to venture north to discover new opportunities in the opening of the American West when he—and the camels—are no longer needed. Geoffrey arrives in St. Thomas, Nevada, a polygamous settlement caught up in territorial fights over boundaries and new taxation. There, he falls in love with Sophia Hughes, a hatmaker obsessed with beauty and the third wife of a polygamist. Geoffrey believes Sophia wants to be free of polygamy and go away with him to a better life, but Sophia’s motivations are not so easily understood. She had become committed to Mormon beliefs in England and moved to Utah Territory to assuage her spiritual needs.

The death of Sophia’s child and her illicit relationship with Geoffrey generate a complex nexus where her new love for Geoffrey competes with societal expectations and a rugged West seeking domesticity. When faced with the opportunity to move away from her polygamist husband and her tumultuous life in St. Thomas, Sophia becomes tormented by a life-changing decision she must face alone.

A literary and elegiac exploration of ranch and small-town life in California’s San Joaquin Valley

The Toughest Kid We Knew
The Old New West
A Personal History

FRANK BERGON

“In elegant prose, Frank Bergon has conjured a complex portrait of the San Joaquin Valley of California during the mid-1950s and beyond, where some ninety distinct ethnic communities lived together for a century, his own valley family being Basque as were his beloved grandparents in Nevada. The Toughest Kid We Knew is one of the best literary memoirs written, focusing on the particular while evoking universal human experience.”

—Roxanne Dunbar-Ortiz, author of Red Dirt: Growing Up Okie

From critically acclaimed author Frank Bergon comes a new personal narrative about the San Joaquin Valley in California. This intimate companion to Two-Buck Chuck & The Marlboro Man brings us back to an Old West at odds with New West realities where rapid change is a common trait and memories are of rural beauty. Despite the physical transformations wrought by technology and modernity in the twenty-first century, elements of an older way of thinking still remain, and Bergon traces its presence using experiences from his own family and friends.

Communal camaraderie, love of the land and its food, and joy in hard work done well describe Western lives ignored or misrepresented in most histories of California and the West. Yet nostalgia does not drive Frank Bergon’s intellectual return to that world. Also prevalent was a culture of fighting, ignorance about alcoholic addiction, brutalizing labor, and a feudal mentality that created a pain better lost and bid good riddance.

Through it all, what emerges from his portraits and essays is a revelation of small-town and ranch life in the rural West. A place where the American way of extirpating the past and violently altering the land is accelerated. What Bergon has written is a portrayal of a past and people who shaped the country he called home.

Frank Bergon is a critically acclaimed novelist, critic, and essayist. His writing mainly focuses on the history and environment of the American West, including his most recent work Two-Buck Chuck & The Marlboro Man. Bergon was born in Ely, Nevada, and grew up on a ranch in Madera County in California’s San Joaquin Valley.

Establishes the unique connection between the development of industrial food and twentieth-century literature in Britain and Ireland

Farm to Form
Modernist Literature and Ecologies of Food in the British Empire

JESSICA MARTELL

“Farm to Form is a well-written, solid piece of scholarship. The selection of writers and texts alone will make this book a must-read, and no one, to my knowledge, has explored to this extent how the rapid transformation of food production, distribution, and marketing touched the choices that writers made in shaping their work.”

— Bill Conlogue, professor of English, Marywood University and author of Working the Garden

In this groundbreaking book, Jessica Martell investigates the relationship between industrial food and the emergence of literary modernisms in Britain and Ireland. By the early twentieth century, the industrialization of the British Empire’s food system had rendered many traditional farming operations—and attendant agrarian ways of life—obsolete. Weaving insights from modernist studies, food studies, and ecocriticism, Farm to Form contends that industrial food made nature “modernist,” a term used as literary scholars understand it—stylistically disorienting, unfamiliar, and artificial but also exhilarating, excessive, and above all, new. Martell draws in part upon archives in the United Kingdom but also presents imperial foodways as an extended rehearsal for the current era of industrial food supremacy. She analyzes how pastoral mode, anachronism, fragmentation, and polyvocal narration reflect the power of the literary arts to reckon with—and to resist—the new “modernist ecologies” of the twentieth century.

Informed by Martell’s extensive knowledge of modern British, Irish, American, and World Literatures, this progressive work positions modernism as central to the study of narratives of resistance against social and environmental degradation. Analyzed works include those of Thomas Hardy, E. M. Forster, Virginia Woolf, Joseph Conrad, George Russell, and James Joyce.

In light of climate change, fossil fuel supremacy, nutritional dearth, and other pressing food issues, modernist texts bring to life an era of crisis and anxiety similar to our own. In doing so, Martell summons the past as a way to employ the modernist technique of “defamiliarizing” the present so that entrenched perceptions can be challenged.

Jessica Martell is assistant professor in the Department of Interdisciplinary Studies at Appalachian State University in North Carolina. Her work has appeared in Modernist Cultures, Journal of Modern Literature, Nineteenth-Century Literature, and Gastronomica: The Journal of Critical Food Studies as well as six scholarly collections. Martell is an executive board member of Blue Ridge Women in Agriculture, a woman-led non-profit helping to build an equitable and sustainable food system in North Carolina’s High Country.
The rise of premium wine and how it transformed a regional wine industry

Wine by Design
Santa Barbara’s Quest for Terroir

VICTOR W. GERACI

“Geraci is THE author to read on the Santa Barbara wine industry. This book is the work of a master craftsman in history.”
—Kolleen M. Guy, associate professor of history, Duke Kunshan University

From its eighteenth-century beginnings, the Santa Barbara wine industry achieved success by embracing a “wine by design” model. In this process, farmers, winemakers, and entrepreneurs overcome roadblocks like diseases, government policies and regulations, and environmental concerns by utilizing the latest technological advances coupled with agribusiness capitalism.

As the American demand for premium wine grapes intensified in the late twentieth century, the Northern California wine industry rapidly grew its boutique and innovative local designer winemaking to increase profit to meet demand and compete on a global scale. Set in the context of the regional, national, and global wine community, this history illuminates a regional story of how the Santa Barbara wine industry found solutions to current market conditions while utilizing local traditions to develop a new version of local wine terroir. An accomplishment that allowed them to compete in the global marketplace yet develop highly specialized wine that is unique to the region.

By employing leading-edge technology and entrepreneurship, the California Central Coast region of Santa Barbara became a model for the American vision of agricultural innovation and an integral part of the international wine trade, developing a personalized version of local wine terroir.

Victor W. Geraci is a former food and wine history specialist at the Oral History Center at the Bancroft Library and author of Salud!.
An intense behind-the-scenes biography of the complex and intriguing icon who helped reshape aviation, Hollywood, and Las Vegas

Howard Hughes
Power, Paranoia, and Palace Intrigue
Revised and Expanded

GEOFF SCHUMACHER

Praise for the First Edition:
“Schumacher draws upon research from other books, interviews, and a lifetime of covering his native city to produce an entertaining volume about a relentlessly fascinating character.”
—Publishers Weekly

This newly revised and expanded edition of Howard Hughes chronicles the life and legacies of one of the most intriguing and accomplished Americans of the twentieth century. Hughes, born into wealth thanks to his father’s innovative drill bit that transformed the oil industry, put his inheritance to work in multiple ways, from producing big-budget Hollywood movies to building the world’s fastest and largest airplanes. Hughes set air speed records and traveled around the world in record time, earning ticker-tape parades in three cities in 1938. Later, he moved to Las Vegas and invested heavily in casinos. He bought seven resorts, helping to loosen organized crime’s grip on Nevada’s lifeblood industry.

Although the public viewed Hughes as a heroic and independent-minded trailblazer, behind closed doors he suffered from germophobia, obsessive-compulsive disorder, and an addiction to painkillers. He became paranoid and reclusive, surrounding himself with a small cadre of loyal caretakers. As executives battled each other over his empire, Hughes’ physical and mental health deteriorated to the point where he lost control of his business affairs.

Expanded to include more insider details, this new edition provides insights into Hughes’s involvement with the mob, his ownership and struggles as the majority shareholder of TWA and the wide-ranging activities of Hughes Aircraft Company, Hughes’s critical role in the Glomar Explorer CIA project (a deep-sea drillship platform built to recover the Soviet submarine K-129), and more. Based on in-depth interviews with individuals who knew and worked with Hughes, this fascinating biography provides a colorful and comprehensive look at Hughes—from his life and career to his final years and lasting influence. This penetrating depiction of the man behind the curtain demonstrates Hughes’s legacy, and enduring impact on popular culture.
An examination of the economic and cultural influences upon the professional theater industry of the Victorian American West

From San Francisco Eastward

Victorian Theater in the American West

CAROLYN GRATTAAN EICHH

“To date, most large-scale studies of theatrical performance in the nineteenth-century U.S. West have taken the form of chronicles as opposed to analyses, and have tended to be limited in geographical scope. From San Francisco Eastward is a refreshing departure from this tradition on both counts.”

—Andrew Gibb, associate professor of theater and dance, Texas A & M University

Carolyn Grattan Eichin’s From San Francisco Eastward explores the dynamics and influence of theater in the West during the Victorian era. San Francisco, Eichin argues, served as the nucleus of the western theatrical world, having attained prominence behind only New York and Boston as the nation’s most important theatrical center by 1870. By focusing on the West’s hinterland communities, theater as a capitalist venture driven by the sale of cultural forms is illuminated against the backdrop of urbanization.

Using the vagaries of the West’s notorious boom-bust economic cycles, Eichin traces the fiscal, demographic, and geographic influences that shaped western theater. With an emphasis on the 1860s and 70s, this thoroughly researched work uses distinct notions of ethnicity, class, and gender to examine a cultural institution driven by a market economy. From San Francisco Eastward is a thorough analysis of the ever-changing theatrical personalities and strategies that shaped Victorian theater in the West, and the ways in which theater as a business transformed the values of a region.

Carolyn Grattan Eichin has contributed numerous articles to western journals and has worked as an archaeologist and historian. She lives in California.

A guide to help students achieve success in higher education in Northern Nevada

Success for All
Programs to Support Students throughout Their College Experience

Edited by MELISA N. CHOROSZY and THEODOR M. MEEK, with contributions by JAMES BEATTIE and REEMA K. NAIK

While the most important measure of success for many degree-seeking students is the timely attainment of a bachelor’s degree, there remains a host of other indicators of student success that vary by student population and students’ personal goals. Many of these smaller successes lead to the ultimate goal of graduation and are significant triumphs throughout the journey through higher education.

Success for All is a strategic guide for administrators and educators that offers methods for advising students through the myriad of challenges they face. This book provides a specific roadmap to the research, services, and programs at the University of Nevada, Reno and Truckee Meadows Community College that support student success in undergraduate and graduate programs regardless of a student’s social, emotional, or prior academic experiences. Contributors discuss how to make students feel welcome in their social and educational environments and how to directly assist them with the timely completion of their degree. Administrators and educators demonstrate how these programs help make a positive contribution to the students and the institutions they serve, while implementing practical solutions to increase graduation rates.

Melisa N. Choroszy is the associate vice president for enrollment services at the University of Nevada, Reno.

Theodor M. Meek is the Research Scholar for the Nevada System of Higher Education.

“Despite years of exile in Cuba, despite torture from Franco’s henchmen, despite living outside all things urban, modern, and conventional, his work is some of the most compelling poetry I have read. It lies at the intersection of faith and terror, a fault line he straddles with aplomb . . . He is his own wildly carved Basque voice and it questions long after the poems have been read.”

Hitler and Mussolini’s decision to help General Franco with war material and troops brought war to the Basque Country and Catalonia. Franco’s victory in 1939 caused the exile of hundreds of thousands of Basque and Catalan civilians.

Based on archival and field research, Australianuak primarily focuses on the formal recruitment of Basques as manual sugar canecutters in the late 1950s and the early 1960s in tropical Queensland’s Far North. From 1970, the mechanization of harvesting forced canecutters to develop new life strategies. As this volume shows, Basques in Australia maintained their ethnic identity, as well as contacts with their European homeland.

Bergon sets this record straight with close-up stories of people with whom he grew up and befriended in the San Joaquin Valley, homeland of his own Basque progenitors.”
—Booklist

“A tour of the interior West worth taking.”
—Kirkus Reviews

“. . . insightful . . . Bergon’s memories and interviews ground larger historical events . . .”
—Publishers Weekly

“Novelist and critic Frank Bergon paints a remarkable portrait of life in California’s Great Central Valley through his loving sketches of rural and small-town Westerners. Biographies from this racially and ethnically diverse agricultural community reveal what it means to be part of the contemporary American West, where the mythic Old West meets twenty-first-century realities.”
—Henry Louis Gates, Jr., Alphonse Fletcher University Professor, Harvard University, author of Colored People

“Bergon’s beautifully drawn portraits capture a slice of the twenty-first-century West where old values are tightly held, idiosyncrasies are gently endured, and change is acknowledged, if not always embraced.”
—Martha A. Sandweiss, Professor of History, Princeton University, author of Passing Strange

“No one grasps the astonishing diversity of the American West better than Frank Bergon . . . Once started, I dare you (Western style) to try to put this book down!”
—Lee Clark Mitchell, author of Late Westerns

“With a novelist’s fine gifts for character and scene, a historian’s depth of perspective, and a local’s intimate knowledge and love, Frank Bergon leads us through California’s Big Valley, where the past lies entwined with the present and every critical tension in modern America plays out in its most distilled form.”
—Miriam Horn, author of Rancher, Farmer, Fisherman

Little Lost River
A Novel
PAMELA JOHNSTON

“Little Lost River is a powerful meditation on the joys and limitations of motherhood. Johnston writes with rare honesty of the barren spaces in the most intimate relationships, but suggests, in her moving laconic prose, that by accepting these gaps and lapses, we may find some solace in the hidden underground river connecting us all.”
